

Introducing the Money Talent Network™

Freelance marketing and creative experts for financial services

In this challenging business environment, more financial companies will be seeking to outsource their marketing projects. In response, Diversified Management Resources has created the Money Talent Network™, a new resource for marketers looking for skilled freelance and independent contractors who are proven experts in the financial services business. Whatever kind of skills you offer—writing, web development, graphic design, market research, product development and more—D.M.R. may be able to help you find freelance or contract assignments.

Put our name to work for you.

Since 1987, financial services companies have hired us to recruit experts in all marketing disciplines. We know the financial services business and have extensive contacts throughout the industry.

Access to projects or ongoing work.

Marketing executives who contact us are looking for help on single projects as well as continuing assignments.

Straightforward business arrangements.

When our clients engage freelancers we have found for them, they pay D.M.R. an affordable fee based on the size of their project. They pay our freelancers directly on a 1099 basis. If they later hire the freelancer for regular employment, they pay us a placement fee that is much lower than what they would generally expect to pay to a recruiting firm or agency. Freelancers in our network never pay a referral fee of any kind.
